A permit was issued last summer. The plant plans to use 40 acres on the road for an open pit clay mine. Clay would be used as one of the layers in a cap that the plant plans to install on each of the ten already existing hazardous waste sites, as they become full. The clay will also be used

Whether the DuPont for the construction of another 32 acre hazardous waste site if permits to build the site are approved. Still pending is an approval from the United States Army Corps of Engineers which will allow the plant to fill in 24 acres of wetlands to build the site, located about 1,000 feet from the Bay of St. Louis on plant property.

The Corps decision is pending as they wait for MDEQ to issue a Water Quality Certification which must state that the fill will not degrade water quality in the Bay. As of Friday afternoon, the agency had not received the certification.

The proposal to fill the 24

"We've got to get away from this big money dominating our court," Pittman says. He favors a system of governors appointing appellate court judges after vetting their appointees through a selection process. Lower trial court judges would remain elective.

Notably, the high court's current chief justice, Jim Smith, has also advocated abandoning the elective system and going to a gubernatorial appointment system.

Meantime, however,

Mississippians have to hopefully select from the multiplicity of names on the ballot the best choices offered them to sit on the state's highest court.

The most significant contest Nov. 2 is in the central Supreme Court district where Justice James Graves, the lone African-American member of the nine-member court; faces a major effort stemming from business interests to unseat him.

side of his chest and exited through his right to then wound Fowler.

Fowler escaped on foot, and several shots were fired at him as he ran. He later called 911 from a nearby residence.

Trent Boyd, of the Police Waveland Department, testified that he and his partner were the first on the scene. Boyd said he arrived just in time to see Garcia gasp twice, and then die in the cab of his truck.

Boyd said that Garcia had money in his hand at the time of his death.

— No murder weapon was found, and there were many different eye-witness accounts. Defense Attorney Harry Ward said in his opening statement that some witnesses said Vaughn was the only shooter, and some said that there was more than one man. Descriptions of the murder weapon ranged from a .22 assault rifle.

Steve Byrd, section chief of the firearms laboratory at said that the bullet that killed Vaughn was a ninemillimeter full-metal jacket pistol round.

Jamie Lewis and Marcus Martin, who were at the block party, both testified that they saw Vaughn fire into Garcia's truck.

Both men are currently incarcerated at the Hancock County jail for drug charges.

According to testimony, entered through the left revolver to an AK-47 friend of Garcia's said he spoke with the victim just before he was killed. Martin said that Garcia was the Mississippi Crime Lab, attempting to buy some cocaine. Martin did not have any, and advised Garcia to leave, as several individuals at the block party seemed to resent his presence.

Martin and Lewis both said that they did not immediately come forward after the crime because they did not want to get involved.

John Foucher, who has been an inmate at the Hancock County jail for the past 14 months, said that Noble is a 14-year member of the sheriff's department, while Johnson is in his 11th year.

Garber said, "Noble and Johnson are good at working together and they bring an experience of 25 years at this facility. They form a very good leadership for the 29-member department," which as you know, works 24-hours a day, 365 days a year."

Noble is a native of Mobile, AL, and is the mother of two daughters and a son.

Johnson is a native of Arizona and is married to the former Christine Stokey, of Metairie, LA. They are the parents of a 12-year-old daughter, who attends Hancock Middle School. Johnson's wife is an officer with the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

Noble and Johnson are responsible for many tasks at the Criminal Justice Facility. The facility handles the welfare of an average of 125 inmates a day.

About her promotion to jail warden, Noble said, "I just love being involved in law enforcement. You get to help lots of people. You can help them make a change in their lives. I am a people person, working at the jail gives me an opportunity to meet lots of people, and not only those in trouble."

Johnson said, "I just enjoy working with Hancock County's law enforcement and the inmates."

Among the responsibilities of the warden's department are supervising jailers, booking, transportation officers, medical needs, mail, transfers to other facilities, family visits, court dates, inmate visitors, feeding, inmate work details, and providing extra security

Weems honored with field dedication

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II Staff Writer

The venerable coach was humbled and lauded for his influence over the boys he coached at both St. Stanislaus and Bay High last Friday night when the Bay-Waveland School District renamed the baseball field the Fred W. Weems Baseball Complex.

Weems, the longtime Bay High and SSC baseball coach, was honored at halftime during the Bay-High/St Stanislaus football game. The baseball community he helped build at both schools came out to honor the man who meant so much to them on the diamond.

Mike Weems, oldest son of Fred Weems and current Bay High head coach, stated, "Dad always cared more about the kids than winning ball games. We, my brothers and sisters, are so fortunate to have had a father like him and a coach of his caliber. We want to the thank Evelyn and Gary Yarbrough and Amy Coyne for getting this dedication rolling and making the proposal to the school board. This is truly a great honor for dad."

Fred Weems, a Biloxi native, has been woven into baseball legend and lore in Bay St. Louis largely because he simply gave his time and talent to teach the youngsters of the community not only how to be a good ballplayer, but how to be a good person.

Weems attended on baseball scholarships where he was named MVP at the latter.

He continued playing baseball in Europe after joining the United States Army. He was a player/coach in Germany while serving overseas. Upon his return to the states, Weems earned his Doctorate in Education from the University of Southern Mississippi. He

Cancer -- surviving treatment

Her ductal carcinoma was caught early and not inva-

Estopinal was not as lucky. Doctors told her that her cancer may have been growing for as long as eight years before it was detected. Still, with a radical mastectomy of the left breast and lymph nodes removed, followed by chemotherapy and years of cancer drugs, they gave her an 80 percent chance of living out her normal life span. Since then, doctors have, she said, reduced that chance to 65

Estopinal is now taking the cancer drug Armidex and must continue the treatment for five years. After that she will take another drug for another two years. These drugs, like chemotherapy, she says, play havoc with her immune system.

For both women, they represent the first known cases of breast cancer in their families. And both want to help women become more aware of the disease and take the steps to protect themselves.

"I never was a person to go out of my way to get involved in a cause," said Zitterkopf. "I'd donate if asked, but I didn't participate. Now breast cancer is my cause."

Zitterkopf hopes to work to organize a breast cancer walk in the area and bring more education to women in Estopinal is interested in educating women about the importance of monthly breast exams and regular mammograms. She would like to see mammograms required at 30 rather than 40. But she is also deeply interested in finding the ral nipple. She has one little cause of the disease. scar where the original for Estopinal She thinks Especially, she says, when it lump was taken for biopsy that the back problems she knows personally are the breast. being diagnosed.

"Is it our lifestyle or what ... I am interested to find divorce, I've gotten courage and I'm not going to stop. I her. She returned to have a want answers from our county and our state. They need to address these questions and give us some answers."

Both agree that one of the most important ways to fight against the disease is to bring it out into the open; to talk about it with the women in their families and the women in their communities. Without that communication women are left only with a vague knowledge of the disease and the fear that goes along with not having all the information.

"Just telling your story helps women become more aware," said Zitterkopf. "I don't want to or need to be ashamed ... it needs to be talked about."

Talking about the reconsructive surgery that each woman chose is an important part of that education. The reconstruction phase of disease plays an important part of recovery because it represents the return of a positive self image for so many women. Zitterkopf said her doctors told her that women who are able to undergo breast reconstruction at the same time as the mastectomy show an increased chance of a quicker recovery because their mental state is more posi-

She underwent 14 hours of surgery to complete the entire process. She chose to use fatty tissue from her own body for her reconstruction. She was able to keep her right nipple because no cancer was found in her right breast. After a short time she returned to have the artificially formed nipple tattooed to resemble the natuseems like so many women and small scars underneath

Estopinal did not undergo reconstruction at the time of the mastectomy out," she said. "Going because her cancer was through chemo, and now, a more widespread and that option was not available to

"They tell you it will take a good year for you to get back to normal after chemo," said Zitterkopf. "Right now I'm just waiting for my year to go by. It's a long road. I've missed a lot of work and just don't feel right."

Zitterkopf has suffered several chemo induced illnesses since she finished the treatment at the end of last year. In March she was diagnosed Pancreatitus, which inhibits the secretion of insulin and the digestion of many foods. Her eye sight has worsened, and she suffers from throat and bladder infections and exema. There are many after effects, she said. But she is hopeful that things will improve after her first year.

Estopinal battles with a very low white blood cell count, making her susceptible to many diseases. A ordinary cold for someone else may become a major bout which inhibit her movement were partially caused by the extreme swelling that the chemo caused in the vertebrae of her back. She developed serious upper respiratory infections during with a chronic condition. The treatment also elevated her cholesterol, she said, but the drugs to treat it would put to much of a strain on her liver. She is not as hopeful as Zitterkopf that the secondary effects of chemo will lesson with time.

Both women lost all the hair on their bodies. Estopinal's blonde hair grew back dark red, thick and curly Zitterkopf's has grown back a little darker than before, also thick and curly. Neither particularly care for their new look but are happy just to have their hair growing again.

Both women are planning to go on with their education and in time, when they are strong enough, to put their efforts into helping other women facing the same challenges. For now, they are taking one day at a time and remembering to enjoy the little things in life, like family. Both women say that family and friends had a lot to do with their successful recovery process, offering inspiration and support through a difficult time.

Their advice to othersthough everyone handles an experience differently-try your best to keep a positive attitude and learn from the experience. Zitterkopf and Estopinal have learned that they are strong and that they can use their experience and their strength to help others.

"It changed me in a positive way, most definitely," said Zitterkopf. "I felt I needed to do something, to give back. God had blessed me and I needed to give back." Christmas

Zitterkopf and her family adopted a single parent family and took two carloads of groceries and gifts to them.

"It was the best thing I've ever done in my life," she

If you are interested in adopting a pure- bred animal or other specific type of pet, a rescue is a great place

There may be a waiting list, but most rescues will work hard to find the perfect pet for you as quickly as possible. Area rescues usually network with other groups, and animals are often transported cross- country by "relay teams" of volunteers so they can reach their new home! By adopting from a res-

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY

Notice of Record of Decision for Purchase of Land in Hancock County, MS for a Naval Special Operations Forces (SOF) Riverine and Jungle Training Range.

SUMMARY: The Department of the Navy announces its decision to purchase approximately 5,200 acres of privately owned property in the northwestern acoustic buffer of the John C. Stennis Space Center (SSC) in Hancock County, MS to establish a Naval Special Operations Forces Riverine and Jungle Training Range.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Mr. Richard Davis, Southern Division, Naval Facilities Engineering Command, P.O. Box 190010, North Charleston, SC 29419-9010. Telephone (843) 820-5589. facsimile (843) 820-7472, or e-mail: richard.a.davis1@navy.mil.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Final Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) was distributed August 6, 2004 for a 30-day public review period. In addition to the no action alternative. three operational alternatives were analyzed in detail in the Final EIS. During this time period, only two comment letters were received, and no new substantive issues were raised. After considering the purpose and need for the proposed action, the analyses contained in the Final EIS, and comments received from Federal, state, and local agencies and members of the public, the Department of the Navy has determined that purchase of the proposed acreage at SSC and establishment of a Naval SOF riverine and jungle training range to conduct training, as described in Basic Training Alternative C. will best meet the needs of Naval SOR to train under realistic combat conditions, thereby increasing their readiness to support national defense objectives. The proposed property acquisition will be completed as quickly as practicable, consistent with Congressional appropriations and final assessments and negotiations with property owners. The complete text of the Record of Decision for this action may be accessed through the Federal Register at http://www.gpoaccess.gov/fr/index.html.

Time -- new courthouse?

Oct. 1, were the major items disposed at a harmonious session Tuesday night by Hancock General Hospital board trustees. Duckworth succeeds Cornelius J. Ladner. Clifton Saucier and John D. Rutherford were re-elected vice president and treasurer respectively while Peck Mauffray was elected secretary, succeeding Duckworth. Sam L. Favre was reappointed board attorney. All elections were unanimous.

-Need for a new Courthouse building was revived when the board of supervisors met Monday and considered means of preserving and revising record files to provide emergency space in the vault. A representative Tom L. Ketchings, Co., a firm handling preservation of public records, was asked to draw up specifications for bids on undertaking such a project for Hancock County after he reported on an inspection of papers and filing at the courthouse. He warned the board that the plan would only provide emergency relief by clearing a few shelves in the vault for record books on order. He proposed clear up the storage room on the third floor which he termed a fire trap at present. Supervisor R. G. Hubbard, Jr., concurred with the need for this work, adding it raised the question once more of what the supervisors planned to do with the Courthouse. Supervisor H.G. Dean contended the board should take steps towards securing an adequate site on U.S. 90 with provision of off-street parking and perhaps grouping other county facilities there. Remodeling the present structure would be far more costly than building anew, he declared. The Ketching representative commented the county had been fortunate it did not build a new courthouse four years ago before the present growth could have even been anticipated.

FIFTY YEARS AGO October 21, 1954 - Three persons were arrested this week for shooting firearms in the City limits of Bay St. Louis. Mayor John Scafide confiscated the firearms and placed the violators on a suspended sentence. Mayor Scafide said, "There is grave danger attached to shooting firearms within the city limits. There is a possibility of someone being killed or seriously injured by such carelessness. "For the first time on the full penalty permitted by the law will be administered to those caught violating the
